BUYING BREEDING POULTRY.

Good Blood in Poultry Yard Is Not a Mere Whim, But a Money-Maker.

Breeding stock should be accustomed to their quarters before the breeding season opens. Those of our readers who have made up their minds to dispose of their old cocks should get them out of the way and replace them with new ones without much delay. The old ones will never taste much better than right now. A tough old bird can be made very palatable if put into a stew and cooked slowly long enough. If the old ones are not out of the way before the new ones arrive, the old ones will look upon the new ones as intruders, and flocks will result that can serve no good end. If the new arrivals find no opponents, they will accommodate themselves to conditions very quickly, and the flock will be ready to get results by the time eggs are wanted for hatching. There can be no doubt about it, no doubt that those who are reading progressive farm papers will want to improve their flocks. If they do not this year, they will next or the year after. This thing of having good blood is no more idle whim. It is a money-making proposition. The sooner good blood is put into the flock, the sooner will more pride be taken in the business and more profits taken out of the business.

It requires so much money to stock up on both males and females for the larger classes of live stock that most farmers feel they can not afford it; but this is not the case with poultry. A good male and a small number of females can be got at a small outlay. If there are no other males on the place the new male can be used with the whole flock. This will give a few standard bred birds and many others that are not standard bred. If one desires to have some that are pure standard bred blood and to know which are pure blooded and which are not, it will be necessary to have a pen for the pure bloods. Usually pens for poultry on the farm should not be tolerated, but an exception might properly be made in a case of this kind.

Where possible, the poultry raiser should begin at the top every time—that is, start with standard bred fowls in every case by using standard bred breeders of both sexes. If this can not be afforded—usually it can—then standard bred males and make a practice of doing so each succeeding year. The change that will be wrought in the flock in twelve months will be enough to make anyone proud. The second year the offspring will look so much like their standard bred ancestors that it will begin to be hard to tell the birds of mixed breeding from those that are standard bred. When a flock reaches this degree of excellence, it begins to be a very practical fowl for the farmer whose chief aim is to get a reasonable number of eggs and to have every lot of eggs and birds marketed grade evenly and consequently make that pleasant impression on the eye that makes good sales.

It so happens that after a poultryman starts with one breed of fowls he concludes he ought to get new blood by crossing with some other breed. Such violent crosses are unfortunate, since a common result is that the offspring do not develop the good qualities of their immediate ancestors so much as they do their bad qualities. The offspring looks too much like mongrels. Always get new blood by using birds of the same breed.

The experience of practical breeders have so repeatedly shown that these principles are correct that there is no use in listening to the free advice given by some one who is unable to tell whether a fowl is standard bred or not. Wide experience and many observations are necessary to formulate rules for breeding, and it is safer to follow the advice of those who have attained great success than it is to follow the advice of some one who has really never accomplished much.

With the crops practically housed and only the remnants to be gathered, there is now nothing to do but to fix up things generally and commence operations for next year's crop. One good way to begin is to sow rye, wherever possible, for grazing in the spring and for soil improvement. We want to plan to make larger yields per acre next year than we made this year, or last year either. The surest way to do this is to do better farming. Rye will hold much fertility that would be leached out of the soil by the winter rains and lost to us if there were no living plants to take it up. And when plowed under next spring, rye will give to the land, in addition to the stored fertility, humus which most of our lands stand so much in need of. It is late, of course, to sow rye, but this is one of the things about which it can be truthfully said: "Better late than never."

A dry floor well covered with litter keeps the house contented when blizzards are raging outside, and it fills the egg basket when eggs are worth anywhere from 30 to 50 cents per dozen.

Change the feed lots often. It improves the land greatly and improves the hog more. —A. M. Worden.

POULTRY

FEW LESSONS WITH TURKEYS

Breeder of Twenty-Two Years' Experience Finds Business More Profitable Each Year.

I have raised turkeys for sale 22 years, and find it a more profitable business each year, says a writer in the Farm and Fireside. I have had to learn many lessons, but quite an expensive one. One year I failed entirely by too close breeding. Another year I let my turkeys wander at their own will and about where they pleased. Again I showed some to go up in the trees—a hard storm blew them out and I lost 21 hundred. Since these lessons I have worked differently. I change either breeding hens or one every other year. I usually buy a thoroughbred bronze from some unrelated flock. I keep old hens for breeders, and find their points more healthy. One early turkey is more profitable than three late ones, so I use the first ones and sell the later ones. Chicken hens are set on the first laying and the poultry given to the first turkey hen that becomes broody. Large, airy pens or coops with rainproof roofs are built quite a distance from the house. The hens are kept up two weeks, and then turned out every morning, unless the weather becomes rainy. They have learned to come when called, and will answer me from ever so far when I call "Pee-urk! Come on!" I am never too busy or too tired to get them up at the approach of a hard storm, and at four o'clock in the evening. They soon learn to come home. After they are five or six weeks old I never feed at noon. I feed no sloppy feed, but have good luck with wheat or corn bread, cracked corn, cooked soft, wheat, mashed potatoes, etc.

The first two weeks are the most particular. I give each point a grain of black pepper when it is 21 hours old, and a stroke of lard or vaseline from hill to top of head. Then a foot of hard-boiled egg, shell and all, crushed fine, mixed with bread soaked soft and squeezed dry. Fresh water, sand, lime and ground glass are kept handy. They eat it all; I never feed too much. I never feed over four times a day, and that often only a week. More turkeys die from overfeeding than underfeeding. I use a flat board to sprinkle their feed on, and keep it clean. It pays to be cleanly with turkeys.

LEGHORN HENS AS MOTHERS

Although Called Nonitters Occasionally One Is Found and Will Cover Many Eggs.

Although the Leghorns are called nonitters, they do sit occasionally, and I like them very much as mothers. It would hardly seem possible that a Leghorn hen would cover more eggs than a Cochins, but it is a fact, says a writer in the Farm and Fireside. The Cochins' wings are short and stubby, while the Leghorn's wings are long and she will spread them over a big nestful. Last summer a Leghorn incubated 20 eggs for me and hatched 19 of them. It was, however, in the month of July, and her nest was carefully arranged in a basket; but I never give them less than 15. They take excellent care of their young, being light weight, they seldom hurt a chicks by stepping on it, and they will fight intruders fiercely.

Single-Comb Leghorn.

POULTRY NOTES

Keep your stock healthy, clean and comfortable.

Not all the failures of poultry life are due to the hens.

The first duck eggs of the season are hardly ever fertile.

Don't gorge the growing chicks one day and starve them the next.

Any fowl is liable at times to produce an egg containing blood spots.

Well grown ducklings very often will begin laying at five months of age.

Chicks like heat, and it is good for them; but there is a difference in heat.

Don't let chicks squeeze through slatted coops until their bodies are deformed.

Poultry breeding as a pursuit is on a phantom's labor of love, but it is, nevertheless, a labor.

CUTTING BACK FRUIT TREES

Only Three to Five of Best Limbs Should Be Treated, Says a Colorado Press Bulletin.

A great many factors enter into the determination of just how a tree should be cut back. In this article, says a Colorado bulletin, only a general rule can be given. Only three to five of the best limbs should be cut back to 8 or 12 inches, making the cut just in the direction in which the limb should grow.

All trees should be kept low headed. Do not cut off the lower limbs when it is not necessary, as they are usually the very ones to be left. Lowest limbs should be from 18 to 24 inches from the ground. If the tree has been pruned so that the top is much higher than this, it is usually best to cut the entire top off about three feet from the ground and depend upon forming the top from limbs which come out below this point.

Peach trees can stand more severe pruning than either cherry or apple. Peach trees should generally be cut off about 18 inches from the ground, and if there are any branches below that point they should be cut back to the first or second bud. Cherries or plums need practically no pruning except to cut the branches off a foot or so from the trunk.

VINE CUTTINGS FOR SPRING

Should Be Kept Moist Until Rooted, and Then Given Frequent Cultivation—Hoe Often.

Current and grape cuttings, planted in beds in early spring, are mulched in late summer, preferably with sawdust or tan bark, and kept moist until the cuttings are rooted. Later on the propagating bed is given frequent and shallow cultivation. Hoeing is frequently done between the rows of plants, which are 18 inches apart. This keeps fresh soil around them, keeps down the weeds and water is given when the soil is very dry.

A propagating bed for strawberry plants also needs some attention. The weeds must be kept out. It is best to cut off the late runners, as the early ones make the strongest plants. If several varieties are in the bed set up boards between each to prevent them running together, and be sure to label each division with the name of the variety.

WITH THE MOVIES.

Freedom, represented by a beautiful girl attired in classic draperies, shrieked when Kosciuszko fell. "Don't strain your lungs," said the man who was operating the picture machine. "If you simply move your lips we'll get all the effect we need."

The boy stood on the burning deck "Don't stand like a wooden Indian," yelled the man at the machine. "I don't know where the management finds all these bum lines."

A soldier of the legion lay dying at Algiers. "One minute to change the reel," hawled the operator. "Keep your pose. That won't give you time to smoke no cigarette."

Just as Easy!

The child of the professional humorist was crying at a lump of ice, from which vapor was rising. "See, father!" cried the child. "Even the ice is hot."

"Well, run out into the pantry and you can see the ice-cooler," replied the professional humorist, carefully making a note on his cuff.—Lippia cutting.

Breathlessly he rushed to the lawyer's office. "My next door neighbor is learning to play the cornet," he exclaimed. "The man is a public nuisance. What would you advise me to do?" "Learn to play the trombone," replied the astute lawyer. "Ten dollars, please."

The Trouble.

"Why were you absent from school yesterday, Grace?" asked the teacher. "Please, teacher, my mumps are sick." The teacher, who is afraid of contagion, asked: "What is the matter with her? What does the doctor say it is?" "Please, teacher, he says it's a boy."—Harper's Magazine.

A Trade Grievance.

"Our advertising club has condemned the Wisconsin professor who says nose rubbing should take the place of kissing." "And why, pray?" "For encouraging a 'just as good' substitute."—Judge.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES.

The new addition to the Y. M. C. A. building has been completed and the members are enjoying it very much. The Gymnasium is one of the best in Western Kentucky. On last Saturday night about 150 persons witnessed the first basketball game on the new floor. The local boys were very proud to be able to win their first game by a score of 31 to 22, the Owensboro team being the victim. On next Friday Feb. 14, at 8 o'clock the Madisonville boys will play the local boys here. Do not miss this game as it promises to be a very exciting one. Hartford plays here the 21st, Central City the 28th, and Henderson the 7th of March.

The new Billiard Room is also a very attractive department and is being well patronized. There are three standard 12 by 9 pocket tables in this room with all up to date first class equipment.

The moving picture department is to be opened some time in the near future.

The Junior A & B C League is having a very interesting contest on every Monday and Thursday afternoons in the gym. at 4 P. M. The league is organized to compete for the most points in basket ball, gym. events and bible class attendance. The standing is as follows:

Ravens, 92 points.
Tom Cats, 71 points.
Giants, 59 1-2 points.
Bear Cats, 49 points.

The public is invited to come in and look through our building and its work.

There is now a large demand for horses and mules, both locally, and from shippers, who are now supplying the southern markets. Prices are high, and offerings are light.

In the first three months of the building season of 1913 the Ford factory turned out 24,000 cars and during the week of Dec. 16 to 21 it broke a production record by actually manufacturing 3,358 cars—a larger number than was shipped in the entire month of December, 1911, when 3,023 Fords were put through. The Ford factory will build 200,000 cars for 1913, new factories now being erected that will practically double the present output.

The Y. M. C. A. boys entertained the Owensboro basketball team here Saturday night, the score being 32-22 in favor of our boys, which was some entertaining.

Farmers are beginning to get active; machinery is being overhauled, seeds bought, and everything being put in shape for rush operations soon.

King Road Drag Improves Roads.

Where the King road drag has been used the highways are in fine condition, smooth and free of mud holes. The use of this drag should be general over the county, and will be, in time, as land owners are offering to do the work free, and everyone can well afford to do so, as the work is light, while benefits are great.

The pooled tobacco in Hopkins county has not yet been sold. The price has been set at 8 cents, and it is declared that nothing less will be considered.

It is quite likely that Greenville will have more representatives at President Wilson's inauguration than we have ever had on similar occasions, though we have always had some persons at the important event.

Visit of Mine Car Delayed.

The U. S. Mine Car, to have been here on the 15th inst., will be delayed. Mr. C. W. Taylor having a telegram from Mr. Mason, in charge of the car, that he was called to a mine fire at Fort Branch, Ind., but would be here as soon as possible. There is considerable interest in the visit of this car here, as this is the center of a great field.

50 Mules and Horses Wanted.

E. V. Patterson, of Bowling Green, will be here Saturday, and wants to buy Mules from 12 to 16 hands high, 4 to 12 years old, and Horses 4 to 12 years old. Will pay top prices.

YEAR BOOK of Stark Bro's Nurseries & Orchards Co. MAILED TO YOU FREE

Just say on a Postal Card: "Send me a copy of Stark Year Book for 1913." When writing, also tell us how many trees, shrubs, vines, etc., you will probably plant this season.

This Year Book is more than a mere catalogue of Stark nursery products, it is a practical easy to understand text book for the guidance of the man who plants trees. Our own experience of nearly 100 years, the reports of experiment stations and the opinions of planters from all sections are condensed and reproduced for the benefit of every people. An encyclopedia of orchard information, containing full size color illustrations of gloriously lined foliage and many photographic reproductions in black and white; also information on many subjects in which the orchardist is interested.

Hundreds of varieties of apples, pears, peach, plum, cherry, apricot, quince, grape and all small fruits are described; weaknesses of each variety are pointed out and good points are explained. We feel that planters should know both.

Those interested in growing fruits or flowers or shrubs or shade trees will find this book of inestimable value; totally different from the average nurseryman's publications. It is a book you will keep for reference, and one on which you can depend as being absolutely accurate. Write today for your copy.

Temperance

DRINKER IS ALWAYS THIRSTY

Affinity of Alcohol for Mordant Is Like Feverish and Consuming Passion and Paralytic Stagnation.

It is the changeless law of alcohol, when brought in contact with vital tissues, that, though by the liquid quality of the beverage in which it is mixed it seems to appease, it really creates thirst. It does this by absorbing the fluids of the body, notably of the brain, because in the brain, as has been shown, there is much fluid to absorb. Hence the more brain a man has, the less liquor he can stand up under, and the less brain the more impervious he is to the activity of alcohol, which helps to explain why the epoch of our revolutionary ancestors may have been less darkened by drunkenness than our own. The alcohol in drinks acts in exact proportion to the quantity imbibed upon the albuminous matter of the brain precisely as the acts upon water, turning it up with a force and insatiable thirst, which still, like the horse-leech's daughter, keeps crying "Give," until its hot lips have sucked out the last particle with which they come in contact. For it cannot be too strongly stated that the quality of alcohol for mordant is like a feverish and consuming passion, and the blistered nose, burnt brain and paralytic stomach of the man who makes a business of drinking are nature's perpetual object lessons to illustrate that alcohol is the redoubtable enemy of an organism made up, as the human body is, of seven in every eight parts water.—Francis E. Willard

OPEN WAR AGAINST SALOONS

Question Arises as to Why Should Not Men and Religion Attack Prime Cause of Social Evil.

"The saloon has everywhere been found to be a prime cause of all kinds of social evils." This is the statement of a leader in the social service section of the Men and Religion Forward Movement. "We have invariably urged," the report continues, "the indirect attack upon it (the saloon) by such substitutes as school, centers, comfort stations, and recreation centers." The question naturally arises, why not a direct attack? Not that other things should be left undone—these "substitutes" are most helpful—but that the liquor traffic be fought in the open, and without circumlocution. Why should not men and religion move straight forward against the prime cause of all social evil?

Alcohol as a Cause of Cancer.
It is suggested in a report from Bavaria, lately published by the British foreign office as a white paper, from Mr. Buchanan, the British consul, that there is a close connection between alcohol and cancer, for a high medical authority in Bavaria declares that most of his patients suffering from cancer are connected with the public-house trade, and freely consume alcohol in some form or other. The consul points to the fact that endeavors made in high as well as even in Social Democratic quarters—both in Berlin and in Munich—to propagate the principles of temperance, together with the higher cost of living, are not without results, as is shown by the steady decrease in the consumption of beer. As further confirmation of what is already an accepted fact—the connection between alcohol and cancer—the consul's report is interesting.

Alcohol Everywhere an Evil.
Under this title Sir Thomas Whitaker, a noted English expert on the alcohol question, contributes to a popular magazine a most interesting article, which is a valuable contribution to temperance literature. Sir Thomas Whitaker sums up in these words: "The system must be judged as a whole. Evil is inseparable from the common sale and general use of intoxicants—not in every individual case, but in every community. There is no nation in the world today—and there never has been one—where this is not true. It is in the very nature of alcohol that it should and must be so."

Industrial World and Drink.
Employers do not hire men who drink. They cannot afford to do so. The man who drinks is discriminated against throughout the business world. With 80 per cent of the railroads, 79 per cent of the manufacturers, 88 per cent of the merchants and 72 per cent of the farmers refusing to employ men who drink, there is no more excuse for the saloons in the world of economies than in the world of morals.

Where Rest Is.
There is no rest to be found in any escape from the will of God. We may elude a plain duty; we may recoil from that which we know we ought to do, and yet which seems too hard for us, and refuse to undertake the task. But there is no rest in this course. God's will, if it requires work for us, is providing a rest in and through that work sufficient for our needs, for his will is not in conflict with his love. If we feel the need of rest, let us not be too sure that we shall find it in freedom from work.
